The Spartan Marching Band (SMB) was founded in 1870 as a 10-member student group in which all of the original members were Civil War veterans. The SMB was a military unit connected with the college ROTC for most of its existence and until 1952 the band members wore military khaki uniforms. Since 1870, the SMB has grown to 300 members of unique instrumentation. In addition to the percussion, twirlers, drum majors, and flag units, there are 36 Alto Saxophones, 28 Mellophones, 18 Tenor Saxophones, 52 B-Flat Trumpets, 8 E-Flat Cornets, 36 Trombones, 18 Baritones, and 24 Sousaphones. Two of the most iconic traditions of the SMB are The Series and The Kickstep. The Series is the name of the percussion cadence used by the SMB for the march to the stadium and The Kickstep is the field entrance at the beginning of the pregame show. Both have become trademarks of the Spartan Marching Band.

Additionally, the SMB performed at the 1964 New York World's Fair, the 1984 New Orleans World's Fair, and cheered the Detroit Tigers to the 1984 World Series victory. The SMB has entertained five U. S. Presidents and is a recipient of the Louis Sudler Trophy for collegiate marching bands, administered by the John Philip Sousa Foundation.

Now in its 150th season, the 300-member Spartan Marching Band is one of the oldest and most recognized marching bands in the country!
